

Upper GI endoscopy revealed multiple arteriovenous malformations in the small bowel (arrows). These lesions, which can occur as a late complication of radiation treatment, were thought to be the source of GI bleeding.

